

When it comes to good times and a good rock 'n' roll show you can't go much past Sydney's Hell City Glamours. After 9 years treading the sticky boards of Australia's stages in venues ranging from the smallest pubs to entertainment centres you'd damn well hope so too...

Bringing the DIY ethic and sound of their punk rock youth combined with a strong love of solid blues rock bands from the 60s through to now has created a band with a sound that stands out from their influences without hurting anyone's feelings either.

With their debut album released locally in late 2008 after a string of EPs and tours with the likes of Paul Stanley, Airbourne, Sebastian Bach and The Angels they kicked 2009 off with a bang by heading to the US for SXSW and shows in LA and NYC before putting pen to paper on a deal with Powerage Records for the UK and Europe.

2010 saw the second single and filmclip from the album 'One Night Only' released as a limited edition hand packed double A-side after a well deserved break from the road. The band are concentrating on writing for their new album due in mid 2011 in between some quick tours around Australia and are piecing together plans for a UK and European invasion once it's released...
